(Translation from Sanskrit to Chinese in Yuan Wei Dynasty by Northern India Master Bodhiliuchi)

(Further translation from Chinese to English by The One Society)

CHAPTER ONE

Thus have I heard, once, Buddha¹ was in the congregation with 1,250 Great *Bhiksu*² at Jetavana Park in *Srabasti*³. At that time, all disciples, *Devas*⁴, Dragons, *Yaksas*⁵, *Gandharvas*⁶, *Asura*⁷, *Garudas*⁸, *Kinnaras*⁹, *Mahoragas*¹⁰, and men-yet-not-men surrounded the World-most-venerable¹¹. At that time, the World-most-venerable told the public: you should listen attentively! I would tell you the names of Buddha of the past, future and present. So long as virtuous men and/or women learn, read, and cite Buddhas' names, he and/or she shall enjoy ease and peace, away from all adversity, and purge all sins in the present life, and shall attain *Anuttara-samyak-sambodhi*¹² in the future. If virtuous men and/or women want to purge all sins, he and/or she shall cleanse and bath himself and/or herself, wear new and/or clean clothes, kneel and salute with two palms together, and chant as follows:

Praise:

In the worlds in all directions¹³;
All of the past, present and future teachers of mankind¹⁴;
I shall use pure and clean body, words, and mind;
To worship all of them without missing a single one.
